Caeser's Virginia Turkey.

Caesar Alexander Shakewell, a colored citizen of Bridgeville, owned no turkeys, and his richer white neighbors had put theirs in special security as Thanksgiving Day drew near. Mrs. Shakewell kept nagging Caesar about a turkey until he determined to have one before another sun set, at any cost. He sat down before the fire in the twi light to study out some plan of action on the important question.

It came to him quite readily, it appears, for all at once he found himself carrying it out. He had noticed a loose board on Col. Fairgrove's back fence the day before. The Fairgroves were easy-going people, not much given to hammer and nails, and they would be sure to have a turkey in a coop in the backyard getting ready for the annual feast.

Sure enough, the board fell off at the bidding of his brawny arm, and there in a pen in the corner was the bird of his hopes. The slats of his coop dropped before the same potent force, as though they had been mere ravelings. It was no trouble at all to tie his legs, cover his body with an old bag and slip quietly away with him. Once at home Caesar Alexander put him in a barrel and laid heavy sticks of wood on the open top.

Then he called to his wife to come and see him and to quitt 'jorrin' ' him about their Thanksgiving dinner.

She appeared, looked at the bird with eyes like saucers, and then grew very grave.

'Whar did ye git him ?' she asked, with something like awe in her voice.

'Worked for 'im, o' course,' said her gentle spouse, with a sneer. 'Knowed al the time dat I was to git 'im ; but you had to hev yer fill o' jorrin' and complainin' at me for a wuthless nigger. Knowed it was no use to tell ye. Ye wouldn't b'lieve me till he come."

Mrs. Shakewell looked at her husband, a fresh well of admiration springing up in her heart. He was a superior creature, to be sure ; she would never doubt it again.

Before going to bed Caeser Alexander went into his small yard, lifted a stick or two of wood from the turkey's barrel and took a long and fond look at his prize. Suddenly a hand was laid on his shoulder, and he turned with quaking knees, expecting to face the village constable ; but dark as it was he could see that the hand belonged to a gentleman of his own color, though one with whom he was entirely unacquainted—'a kind of old fashioned lookin' nigger,' he said when telling the story afterward. Reassured to find that it wasn't the law he had to confront, he put considerable bravado into his voice as he said :

'Who are ye, anyhow ; and what d'ye want in a gemman's yard at night ? It's forenenst the law to creep aroun' honest folks' houses on the sly that way.'

'Caesar ! Caesar !' said the other, without appearing in the least intimidated ; 'I am one of yer aincestors from 'way back, and I can't come to yer in daytime because I've been dead a long time.'

Here Caesar's teeth chattered and his legs gave way under him.

'Brace up !' said the ancestor, slapping him on the shoulder. 'Brace up ! I'm here for yer good, not for yer harm. I want ye to kerry that turkey back. Ye've done some thing to disgrace the name of Shakewell, and I won't stand it. The constable will be down onto ye to-morrow mornin' 'fore 9 o'clock if ye don't, an' there'll be a neighborhood scandal about this bird that'll make the whole race o' Shakewells shake in their graves. Caesar ! for the sake of your proud and honorable aincestors take that bird back, and to morrow take yer gun and go to the woods and git one o' the turkeys uv yer fathers—an' it's a bird that no nigger ought to turn up his nose at, either.'

Here the 'aincestor' sniffed delightedly at something invisible, something in his memory aparently, and then went on :

'It's a bird dat no man owns ; it's de true Vahginiah turkey. 'Tisn't a feathered bird ; 'tisn't a fowl at all. It wears fur and has fifty teeth, a bristly tongue, a long prehensible tail—you see, Caesar, yer aincestor had larnin'—and plantigrade feet, Caesar, it has plantigrade feet.'

'Ugh !' said Caesar, too dazed to utter an intelligible word.

The 'aincestor' continued : 'Its feet has as many toes on each foot as a man and long sharp claws on every toe except its inside one. It uses dat as a thumb. It is a marsupial turkey, Caesar.' Here the ancestor smiled at the towering proportions of his own learning, but presently talked on.

'Alive it has an odor ye can't mistake, an roasted he smells better nor a flower-garden. He's a bird worth givin' thanks over. Now, take dat ole, droopin', white folks' turkey back to his yowner, and go out ter-morrah and git de 'possum, de 'riginal turkey ob old Vahginiah, de turkey of yer fathers'—and lo ! the ancestor vanished.

Perspiring at every pore Caesar Alexander shouldered the turkey and started toward Col. Fairgroye's. Just as he was about to enter the yard, through the break in the fence previously made by himself, he felt another hand laid on his shoulder with considerable emphasis. Fearing that another and still more terrible ancestor was about to have speech with him, he sank to the earth, without daring to look around. Then the hand grabbed him more firmly and gave him a vigorous shake. He looked up, appealingly and confronted the constable. With a groan he fainted dead away.

'What ye groanin' and carrying on like an animal fur ?' was the next thing he heard. The question was propounded in his wife's most ungentle voice.

He opened his eyes slowly and in abject fear, and found himself sitting by his own fireside, the children in bed and Mrs. Shakewell standing by him with her hand on his shoulder. He never was so happy in his life. Col. Fairgroye's turkey was safe where it belonged ; he had never stolen it, and he hadn't met any dead and gone ancestor at all, only in dreams. Furthermore, he inwardly resolved that he never would, if ancestors' visits only followed thefts.

The next day when he set off with his gun he told Mrs. Shakewell that he would bring home a 'Vahginiah' turkey. And he did. He held it up with pride and joy on his return, and was rewarded by a smile from that exacting lady.

The 'possum was eaten with gravy and grace, and Mr. Shakewell's standing in the community remained unimpaired. As he bent over his own fragrant thanksgiving board he had more than usual cause for gratitude. 'Vahginiah turkeys was good enough fer my fathers, and good 'nough fer me,' he often says ; but though he sometimes tells of the encounter with his ancestor, he never tells of the cause of that worthy individual's visit to him.

MAX ELTON.

BLACK CHEWING GUM. — Lately there has crept into the Detroit market a substance known as "black chewing gum," made out of tar, which is said by medical men to be extremely harmful and pernicious. It is becoming a great favorite with local gum chewers, but physicians assert its use is productive of sore mouths and innumerable throat diseases. Put up in fancy paper, sold at a penny a block, flavored with some unknown ingredient, and christened with a sweetly-sounding name, as "luti-tuti," for instance, the black chewing gum is forcing its entrance into all grades of Detroit society, and driving its rivals to the wall. But it is nothing but tar—cheap tar at that—mixed with gelatine and flavored with—heaven and the manufacturer only know what.—Free Press.

A SHOWMAN CAUGHT.—A showman was making a great fuss at the front of his exhibition of the wonders he had inside. A man standing in the crowd, with a little boy beside him, cried out : 'I'll bet you a dollar you cannot let me see a lion.' 'Done,' said the showman, eagerly; 'put down your money.' The man placed a dollar in the hand of a bystander, and the showman did the same. 'Now walk this way,' said the showman, 'and I'll soon convince you. There you are,' said he, triumphantly; 'look in the corner at that beautiful Numidian lion.' 'I don't see any,' responded the other. 'What's the matter with you ?' asked the showman. 'I'm blind,' was the grinning reply, and in a few minutes the blind man pocketed the two dollars and went away.

Last Week's Tempest.

Vessels and Men go Down on Lake Michigan.

A STORM THAT HAS DONE VAST DAMAGE EAST AND WEST OF THE MISSISSIPPI, ON LAND AND WATER AND BRINGS WINTER.

The first great gale and snow of the season began in Dakota on Tuesday and swept eastward to the lakes. Seven lives are known to have been lost by wrecks on Lake Michigan and many marine disasters are believed to have occurred. The snow has largely obstructed travel in the Northwest, where the railroads have been blocked by the snow.

Swamped in the Breakers.

SEAMEN DROWNED FROM SINKING VESSELS ON LAKE MICHIGAN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 17.—While the storm was at its height this morning the barge Dixon, which was one of the tow of the steamer Justice Fields, foundered off Kewannee, on the western side of Lake Michigan, about one hundred miles north of this city. Two seamen were drowned. A few hours later the Emerald, another of the barges in tow of the fields, got into the breakers and quickly swamped. Five of her crew were swept away and lost. Breview, the mate, was saved in an unconscious condition. The gale blew so terrifically that the steamer was unable to save the barges.

During a terrible gale and snowstorm last night the schooner P. S. Marsh, loaded with coal, ran on the beach near Graham's Point, in the Straits of Mackinac, between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. The captain signaled at ten o'clock this morning that she would soon go to pieces. Help has been sent for, but it will be impossible to do anything to help the vessel to-day on account of the big seas, to which she lays broadside and which are momentarily growing larger. Another schooner is ashore across the point four miles from St. Ignace.

An Early Blizzard.

HEAVY SNOW FROM DAKOTA TO LAKE MICHIGAN—TRAVEL IMPEDED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—No such storm as that of to-day has been known throughout the Northwest so early in the season for many years. In this city a steady rain has been falling since 7 o'clock last night and prevails generally between here and the Mississippi river, west of which there is a heavy snow and howling blizzard, seriously delaying telegraphic communication in all directions. At St. Paul the snow was continuous yesterday, growing heavier after midnight, and this morning the people found the streets so badly blockaded that travel was next to impossible. The blizzard began in Dakota and swept east and south through Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Northern Illinois and Michigan. At Sioux Falls, Dakota, the snow continued for eighteen hours and the temperature fell to zero. On the Illinois Central Railroad, between Fort Dodge and Sioux City, the cuts are filled with snow and snow plows have been sent out to clear the tracks. Trains are impeded on many roads and the blizzard is moving eastward, bringing the snow and falling thermometer with it.

At St. Paul at 9 o'clock to-night the storm had raged forty-eight hours and showed no signs of abatement. Street cars have not been running in either St. Paul or Minneapolis to-day and trains on all railroads are from three to six hours late. While the storm seems to be general throughout the Northwest it is most violent in Southern Dakota. A Sioux Falls special says that more snow has already fallen than during the entire season last winter. The wind is blowing a heavy gale from the north and the snow is drifting very badly. Trains on nearly all the roads are abandoned. The temperature is at zero and falling. There is also strong electrical disturbance. Other points state that the storm is no less severe.

A train with one hundred passengers on board is snowed in eleven miles west of Canton, Dak. The passengers are being fed from a small station near by. The Milwaukee Railway is lined with dead engines in snow drifts.

FOR WHAT SHALL WE BE THANKFUL.

Some Old, Oft Repeated Questions, and Their Unfashionable Answers.

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the sorrowing. 'Grief abideth with us, and in our hearts is the bitterness of cotinnued trouble.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the poor. 'The earth overflows with plenty, but we are destitute. Cold and hunger is our portion, and want is our companion all the days of the year.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the hopeless. 'The days go on, but they bring us no joy. The sun and moon traverse the heavens without warming our chilled hearts or lighting our dark pathway.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the disappointed. 'Wherever we turn, there, waiting to dishearten us, lurks disappointment. When we rise he it is that causes us again to fall.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the tempted, the mistaken, the fallen. 'Our temptations have overcome us ; our mistakes have destroyed us ; our sins have crushed us. For us there is nothing left but wretchedness.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the baffled. 'When we strive we fail ; when we pray no answer comes ; when we hope our hopes are never realized ; when we love our loves are lost to us.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the bereaved. 'Death has robbed us and left us moaning. Our sore hearts cannot take up the cry of rejoicing, for we weep uncomforted.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the sick. 'We suffer and know no ease. We are full of anguish night and day.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the persecuted. 'Our enemies outnumber us ; our burdens are greater than we can bear.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the weary, the wounded, the forsaken, the heavy of heart. 'For us there is no rest, no happiness, no help. Weariness is our portion and burdens our inheritance. We have no cause for rejoicing from the beginning of the year to the end.'

For these, for all these, it is written: 'Rest in the Lord. Oh, rest in the Lord. Wait patiently for Him and He shall give thee thy heart's desire.'

To these, to all these, the promise has been given. To these, the words from a plain old sermon come with power to heal : 'There is heaven to be thankful for. Whatever sorrows bereave us here, whatever fatal mistakes darken our lives, whatever irredeemable losses befall us, we may yet rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him in the little life that remains ; for beyond this world's gain or loss, high in the serene air of heaven, when existence ceases to be a lesson and becomes vivid life, there and only there shall He give us our heart's desire in its immortal fullness. Here knowledge is defiled, love is imperfect, purity the result of fiery trial, wealth rusted into covetousness ; but in heaven is the very native country of pure knowledge, perfect love, utter sinlessness, and riches that neither mot nor rust corrupt, that bless and curse not.'

Another Storm Predicted.

It seems that another storm period will occur next month, if Professor Foster knows anything about such things. He publishes his prediction of a great storm period, extending from December 4th to 17th, during which will occur some of the most destructive winter storms of recent years. Heavy snow and high winds will greatly impede railroad travel and he advises the railways to prepare for blockades that will occur in the western states about December 5th and reach the eastern states December 9th. He suggests that many lives and much property can be saved from loss by making preparations for the severe weather of this storm period.

NO CHANGE NECESSARY.

There is a millionaire in town who has a great reputation of meanness. Most millionaires have that reputation, but most of them are mean to their friends and relatives and others. This man is mean to himself as well. This millionaire was interested in some of the recent failures, and made some sweeping losses.

'Oh, it's awful ! awful ! I'm ruined, quite ruined !' he said to a fellow sufferer.

'I am sorry, but, after all, there's one great thing in your favor.'

'What is that ; I can't see it.'

'You won't need to change your mode of life at all.'

The excessive smoking of tobacco, it is again claimed, causes loss of eyesight. Are men's eyes poorer than women's ?

KIDNAPPED.

There was nothing new in the plot of the desperate villains who sought to extort money from Mr. Ross by stealing his son Charley. The kidnapping of children for the sake of gain or revenge has been practiced for hundreds of years. There are doubtless to-day in this country a score or more of Charley Ross cases, but as the parents are not rich and prominent, and the search not aided by legislative action and the united press, they are seldom heard of by the great public.

The case of Willie Albright, an English lad, was full of strange adventures. He lived at Sheffield with his parents until five years of age. His father was employed in a great factory there and his mother was a dressmaker for the neighborhood. They lived in a cottage in the suburbs of the town, and at the age of four the boy was permitted to run about the neighborhood a good deal. At five, when he was kidnapped, he was sent to the stores to make purchases, and knew all the streets clear to the factory in which his father worked. One day in 1861, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, he was sent to a store three blocks away after some buttons. Before he reached it a strange man accosted him and asked his name. He then gave Willie some sweetmeats and asked him to go and look at a Punch and Judy show in the town, promising to return with him in a half hour. The boy eagerly set off with him, and was taken to the railroad depot and placed on a train in charge of a middle-aged woman, who gave him some more sweet meats and was very kindly spoken. She said the show had moved away and they were going after it, and the novelty of the child's position prevented him feeling any anxiety. When the detectives came to take the case up, as they did two days after the boy disappeared, they got no clue whatever. Although he had walked a mile or two hand in hand with the abductor along crowded streets, nobody remembered seeing the pair. They had gone openly to the railroad station, but no one there had noticed them. The guard on the train dimly remembered a woman and a child in a compartment, but could give no discription. As the Albrights were poor and lowly, no great stir was created, and no great effort was made by the detectives to restore the boy to his parents.

The boy was taken from Sheffield to Liverpool, being so well treated on the way that he had no thought of his home. At Liverpool he was told that his name was John Manton, and that the woman was his mother. When he disputed the point he was soundly whipped. His hair were cut close, his dress entirely changed, and a liquid was rubbed on his skin which turned it dark. Except when he asked to go home, or denied that his name was John Manton, he was kindly treated, and after he had been beaten seven or eight times he accepted the new name, and ceased to refer to his parents. Young as he was this was a stroke of policy on his part. He realized that he had been stolen from home, and he kept repeating to himself that his true name was Willie Albright, and that he lived at Sheffield.

After a couple of weeks lessons in tumbling and tight-rope walking were given to the boy. He was never permitted to go out alone or to converse with strangers, and it soon came natural for him to call the woman mother. In the course of a couple of months the past seemed a dream to him, and he would have forgotten all about it had he not kept repeating to himself : "I am not Johnny Manton, but Willie Albright, and they stole me away from Sheffield." He was in Liverpool six weeks before he knew the name of the city. When he had been taught how to dance, sing, tumble, and walk a tight rope—a matter of three months' time—he was taken around the country with a small show, which the woman owned in part. The novelty of travel was so agreeable that he almost forgot his situation, and was for two or three years quite content. There was no one to teach him how to read or write, but he was quick-witted, and could reason beyond his years. He had hopes that the show would some day reach Sheffield, and he would slip out and run home, but the people of course carefully avoided the place. Once, when they were showing at Doncaster, a few miles away, Willie observed a man whose face had a familiar look, gazing at him in an honest manner, and presently heard him say to a friend :

"The laddie keeps me thinking of the child who was stolen away from neighbor Albright; but of course it can't be the one."

The boy was about to call out that his name was Willie Albright, when the woman, who always kept an eagle eye on him, came closer, and intimidated him. The show then hurridly packed up and left the place. The boy now realized more fully than ever that his right name was Albright, and that he had been stolen from home, but he also realized his hopelessness. He had been told that if he ever tried to run away, wild animals would pursue and devour him, and he was in mortal terror of a bulldog which followed the show. He therefore humbly obeyed all orders, and made no move to run away. He was about eight years old when he changed masters, being sold for a good round price to a man who called himself Prof. Williams. This man was a ventriloquist and juggler, and he took the boy to Australia with him, and gave hall performances for a year or so. They then returned, and made the tour of Scotland and Ireland, and sailed for America. Albright was about eleven years old when he landed in New York. The Professor then took the name of La Pierre, though he was no Frenchman in look or speech, and traveled for a year. One day as they were filling a date at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the boy was sent to the postoffice with letters, and a curious thing happened. One of the four boys who had witnessed the performance the night previous made up to him in a friendly way, and asked his name.

"Johnny Manton," was the reply.

"Yes, but that is your stage name. What is the other ?"

"Willie Albright."

"That's funny. A family named Albright live next door to us. They lived in England."

"So did I."

"Maybe you are related. I'm going to tell 'em about you."

Two hours later a man and his wife called at the hotel and asked for the boy, and the mother had no sooner set eyes on him than she hugged him to her heart. The father was longer making up his mind, but he soon came to feel certain that John Manton was Willie Albright and the boy who had been stolen from him seven or eight years before. The parents had been in America three years, and had long before given up all hopes of ever hearing from the child. The professor made a great kick, as his bread and butter were at stake, but when he found the people determined to have justice done he slipped away in the night and was heard of no more.—*N. Y. SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

The Limited Express Struck By Rolling Rocks.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 18.—The heavy rains of last night caused a most disastrous landslide from Mt. Washington, on the south side of the Monongahela river, the sides of which are almost perpendicular, and along the base of which the Pan-Handle Railroad is constructed. The Limited Express on the Pan-Handle Road, due in the city at 9.40, had reached a place just beyond the Point Bridge, one mile from Union Station, when a mass of rock came crashing down the hillside. The train consisted of three Pullman cars, in addition to several mail cars. The first sleeper was the Cincinnati, and the second and third from Indianapolis. The first mass struck the Cincinnati sleeper, crushing through the roof near the centre. This car had very few passengers in, and nearly all of them were up and in the lavatories. D. Arnheim, of this city, was standing in the isle and was crushed beneath a huge rock. Mr. A. S. Bennet, of New York, was still in his berth and a mass crushed through the upper berth, carried it down upon him, and pinned him beneath it. The second car was struck in the centre, one huge rock going through from one side to the other, and tearing out nearly the entire side of the car. The other car was also badly crushed. Nearly the entire mass remained on the cars, and as the track was but very little obstructed the conductor ordered the engineer to pull out for the Union station as rapidly as possible. A telephone message had been sent giving information of the accident. By the time the train pulled into the station the entire force of employes was ready to assist in removing the injured from the cars, stretchers and all other requirements as well as a force of physicians, being on hand. The cars were in such a condition that they could be brought in, but the presence of mind of the conductor was most commendable. The injured were removed as rapidly as possible and conveyed to hotels near at hand and made as comfortable as possible. The accident caused great excitement. When the news was first announced the most exaggerated reports gained currency. The passengers gave some most graphic descriptions of the scenes in the different sleepers at the time of the accident, and the only wonder is that every one aboard was not killed or injured. The casualties thus far number eight, two of whom, D. Arnheim, of Allegheny, and A. S. Bennet, of New York, are likely to die. The scene where the accident occurred is one of the most dangerous along the line of the road, but it is so carefully watched, especially after heavy rainfalls, that no accidents to trains have occurred at that point for a number of years.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, NOV. 25TH, 1886.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

SECRETARY Manning's health is reported splendid and he is hard at work on his annual report. The idea of retiring from the Cabinet does not enter his mind.

REPORTS are current that Lieut. Gov. C. F. Black will be the successor of Sunset Cox as minister to Turkey. Gov. Black will not fail to fill the bill and gain the esteem of foreign courts.

EX-PRESIDENT Arthur's death which occurred last Thursday, Nov. 18th, takes away another of American's illustrious sons and a man who administered the office of the highest executive in the land to the credit of himself and his countrymen.

ECONOMY and simplicity characterized Gov. Pattison's inauguration. Not so with the coming inauguration of Gen. Beaver. By all appearances the usual pomp and show will accompany that occasion and the coffers of the state will have to stand it. Tra la!

A cyclone struck Girard, Kansas, on Monday morning, Nov. 22nd, passing through the residence portion of the town and demolishing all the lighter buildings in its path which was only about 75 feet wide. The more substantial buildings stood the shock without much damage. A number of persons were injured, some of them seriously.

PENNSYLVANIA suffers an important loss by the recent decision of the Supreme Court, exempting the corporations from the so-called "three mill tax." In consequence of this dicision the state will lose in Allegheny county alone, including Pittsburg and Allegheny City, $225,000 in taxes annually.

THE political complexion of the fiftieth Congress is still strong democratic. The Democrats will have 175 members, the Republicans 150, a majority of 25, or after deducting the three labor representatives elected by the Democrats, a certain majority of 19. It is the first time in forty years that a democratic administration has a majority in their second congress, and we can't complain.

THE republican legislature of Pennsylvania will convene on the first Monday in January and will attend to the following two important matters first, namely the election of Quay, the head boss of the Cameron Clique, to the U. S. Senate, vice Mitchell, whose term expires March 4th. And next the passage of the prohibition amendment to the constitution. The latter action was made a condition by those prohibitionists who refused to follow Wolf, but stuck to the Republican ticket. After the amendment has passed, it will rest until 1888, when it will have to be passed by another legislature. And then the question will go before the people in the following year.

A SPECIAL DISPATCH in Tuesday's Harrisburg Patriot says that the general opinion is that three of the principal places in Beaver's Cabinet have been settled and that it looks from all that can be learned from political sources that may be considered reliable that General Beaver will have his mind made up as to the composition of his Cabinet long before the day of his inauguration as Governor. The talk is that Senator Cooper will be Secretary of the Commonwealth; J. Hay Brown, of Lancaster, Attorney-General; and Col. D. H. Hastings, of Bellefonte, Adjutant-General. The latter's appointment is accepted by all the politicians as a foregone conclusion and it is generally believed that Chairman Cooper will surely succeed W. S. Stenger, provided that the provisions of the Constitution do not prevent. It is held by many that Cooper will be eligible for the office by resigning his seat in the Senate. As to J. Hay Brown, the statement was made to-day that unless something should occur the gentleman will be given the position of Attorney-General. Mr. Brown's friends declare he is an able attorney and that he would be acceptable to all the Republicans of Lancaster county. Upon the resignation of Colonel Quay from the office of State Treasurer it is believed that Chris Magee's friend McDevitt will be given the place. McDevitt was Quay's principal opponent for the nomination last year.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—H. M. Hoxie, General *M*anager of the Gould Southwestern system, died this morning after a lingering illness at his rooms in the *M*etropolitan Opera House. The patient began to sink rapidly at 5 o'clock last evening, but was conscious to the last.

TWO 1886 GOLD MEDALS.—Messrs. Mason & Hamlin again have the distinguished honor of having been awarded the highest gold medal over exhibitors, American and European, both at Liverpool and Edinburgh, the two most important exhibitions of the year 1886. Since the first great Paris exhibition of 1867, the Mason & Hamlin Organs have invariably received the highest honors at all great world's exhibitions. The new mode of piano construction, invented and introduced by Mason & Hamlin in 1882, is no longer an experiment but an assured success, tested and proved, many of the best judges having pronounced it "the greatest improvements in pianos of the century." By its musical tones of remarkable brightness and purity are obtained, and tuning is required less than one-quarter as often as in the old system. An illustrated catalogue, fully explaining the improvements, will be sent free to any address.

Almost Killed for a Dime.

Lively Experience of a Toledo Man Who Fell into a Hot Air Pipe.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 19.—A singular accident occurred at the drug store of I. N. Reed last evening. A gentleman called there to get some medicine, in paying for which he dropped a dime and it rolled upon the register and into the hot air pipe. He said he could see the coin and thought he could reach it. The register was raised and the stranger undertook to reach the dime. In some manner he lost his hold and went head first down into the hot air pipe. Mr. Reed ran into the cellar to assist the man in getting out, but he had fallen against the furnace pipe door and wrenched it off, which let him into the cellar. Fortunately, there was but little fire in the furnace. The young man as soon as he could recover from the shock, remarked that he was a tinner and would fix the door to the furnace pipe. He went to work at it, without even removing his overcoat, and soon had it all right. Aside from being pretty well besmeared with ashes and dirt, he escaped unharmed.

Death of Charles Francis Adams, of Boston.

A Life Spent in Literary Work Ends in Peaceful Sleep After Five Years With a Disease of the Brain.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Charles Francis Adams died at 8.30 a. m. to-day. He had suffered for some five years from brain trouble arising from overtaxing his brain in literary work upon which he was engaged. He was the third son of John Quincy Adams, and was born in Boston, August 19, 1807. He served three years in the Massachusetts legislature and two years in the senate. In 1858 he was elected to Congress, where he served until 1861, when he was appointed Minister to England. He returned from that country in 1868. In the many discussions he had with the British Ministry he showed a complete knowledge of international law and of American history as well as discretion and tact while his influence was greatly increased by his social qualities, his agreeable conversation and his familiarity with the whole range of English literature. When in 1868 he returned after a residence of seven years abroad, Mr. Adams left England with the universal respect of those with whom he had official relations.

Mr Adams has been a contributor to the North American Review and the Christian Examiner and between 1845 and 1848 was the editor of a political daily paper in Boston. His principal literary effort, however, was the editing of the collected writings of his grandfather, John Adams, the second President of the United States. They were published in ten volumes, the first of which contained the life of John Adams, written by him. The latter years of his life were devoted to the editing of a similar work relating to his father, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President.

THE U. S. Dispensatory and the Science of Chemistry justify the assertion that for tonic, diaphoretic and expectorant properties, no combination of remedies can be devised to equal in power and efficacy Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine. It is a safe and reliable standby in case of croup and whooping-cough. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

Run Down by Detectives.

Six of the Notorious Gang of Buzzard Outlaws Arrested and Jailed.

READING, Pa., Nov. 21.—County detective Kershner, constable Brobst and a number of other officers made a raid in the hills beyond Reading and brought, handcuffed, to the jail six prisoners accused of robbery, burglary, horse stealing, threatening to burn barns, and other crimes. The prisoners are rough looking men, hailing from different sections of the county, and all giving fictitious names. Country stores, post-offices and railroad stations are robbed nightly. These prisoners are believed to be members of a regular organized gang who have terrorized northern Berks and southern Schuylkill counties. Augustus Kosser, a stalwart German in a red shirt, is charged with horse stealing. His pals will be first tried for burglary. John Howard, a one-eyed and one-armed man, was detected in firing a barn. Farmers report their barns broken into every night and occupied as sleeping places, regardless of orners to remain off their premises. The thieves have horses and wagons, and sometimes the entire stocks of stores are loaded up and carried off during the night.

A KNIFE CUT OUT OF HIM.

Remarkable Re oval From the Stomach of a Fool-Hardy Man Out West.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 19.—One of the most remarkable surgical operations ever attempted in the United States was performed at 1209 South Broadway, the home of a tailor named Joseph Hoffman. The latter has always had a penchant for swallowing solids without the process of mastication. One year ago he attempted to show his family how swords could be swallowed, and using the poker for illustration. It got fast in his œsophagus and he had a narrow escape from death. Wednesday night he picked up a silver-plated table knife, 10 inches long, and calling upon his children to watch him, he introduced the handle into his mouth and passed it down until only two inches of the blade protruded. At that moment he attempted to look around to see the effect on the spectators, and in doing so the knife slipped down the gullet. He screamed with agony, and a neighbor rushed in and attempted to pull the knife out. He felt the top of the blade but it eluded his grasp and dropped down into the stomach. Dr. A. C. Bernays, the surgeon, was summoned, and decided that the knife would have to be taken from the stomach through an abdominal incision. Hoffman was chloroformed, and an incision five inches long was made in the abdomen. When the stomach was reached the knife was found lying horizontally. An incision about an inch long was made in the stomach, and the knife was seized by the handle and withdrawn. Then came the delicate part of the operation. The mucous membrane was first stitched, then the muscular, and last the peritoneum. The work was done quickly, and there was scarcely any internal hemorrhage. About 20 stitches were then made in the abdominal incision, and the patient was put to bed. Last night he was doing well, and is taking some milk and beef tea. The only danger is from inflammation or blood poisoning. Hoffman is 45 years of age.

The eminent and celebrated Dr. Glessner writes: The Kaskine Co.—DEAR SIRS—"The first greatest successes I had with Kaskine were in chills and fever, malaria, nervous debility, rheumatism, dyspepsia, and liver diseases, and I considered at that time it was undoubtedly the best medicine ever discovered, but I was even then unfamiliar with its really wonderful powers in curing all the other germ diseases and disorders, particularly where the blood had become diseased or impoverished and digestion impaired. Strictly speaking, Kaskine is the only blood purifier we have. I use it also very largely with unfailing success in all diseases peculiar to women and children. In over three hundred cases I have cured there has never been the slightest bad effect following its use, and it is far superior to any tonic or nerve medicine ever known to the medical profession." Very truly yours,

Prof. W. F. Holcombe, M. D., 54 East 25th St., N. Y. (late Prof. in N. Y. Med. College) writes: "Kaskine is superior to quinine in its specific power, and never produces the slightest injury to the hearing or constitution."

Caeser's Virginia Turkey.

Caesar Alexander Shakewell, a colored citizen of Bridgeville, owned no turkeys, and his richer white neighbors had put theirs in special security as Thanksgiving Day drew near. Mrs. Shakewell kept nagging Caesar about a turkey until he determined to have one before another sun set, at any cost. He sat down before the fire in the twi light to study out some plan of action on the important question.

It came to him quite readily, it appears, for all at once he found himself carrying it out. He had noticed a loose board on Col. Fairgrove's back fence the day before. The Fairgroves were easy-going people, not much given to hammer and nails, and they would be sure to have a turkey in a coop in the backyard getting ready for the annual feast.

Sure enough, the board fell off at the bidding of his brawny arm, and there in a pen in the corner was the bird of his hopes. The slats of his coop dropped before the same potent force, as though they had been mere ravelings. It was no trouble at all to tie his legs, cover his body with an old bag and slip quietly away with him. Once at home Caesar Alexander put him in a barrel and laid heavy sticks of wood on the open top.

Then he called to his wife to come and see him and to quitt 'jorrin' ' him about their Thanksgiving dinner.

She appeared, looked at the bird with eyes like saucers, and then grew very grave.

'Whar did ye git him ?' she asked, with something like awe in her voice.

'Worked for 'im, o' course,' said her gentle spouse, with a sneer. 'Knowed al the time dat I was to git 'im ; but you had to hev yer fill o' jorrin' and complainin' at me for a wuthless nigger. Knowed it was no use to tell ye. Ye wouldn't b'lieve me till he come."

Mrs. Shakewell looked at her husband, a fresh well of admiration springing up in her heart. He was a superior creature, to be sure ; she would never doubt it again.

Before going to bed Caeser Alexander went into his small yard, lifted a stick or two of wood from the turkey's barrel and took a long and fond look at his prize. Suddenly a hand was laid on his shoulder, and he turned with quaking knees, expecting to face the village constable ; but dark as it was he could see that the hand belonged to a gentleman of his own color, though one with whom he was entirely unacquainted—'a kind of old fashioned lookin' nigger,' he said when telling the story afterward. Reassured to find that it wasn't the law he had to confront, he put considerable bravado into his voice as he said :

'Who are ye, anyhow ; and what d'ye want in a gemman's yard at night ? It's forenenst the law to creep aroun' honest folks' houses on the sly that way.'

'Caesar ! Caesar !' said the other, without appearing in the least intimidated ; 'I am one of yer aincestors from 'way back, and I can't come to yer in daytime because I've been dead a long time.'

Here Caesar's teeth chattered and his legs gave way under him.

'Brace up !' said the ancestor, slapping him on the shoulder. 'Brace up ! I'm here for yer good, not for yer harm. I want ye to kerry that turkey back. Ye've done some thing to disgrace the name of Shakewell, and I won't stand it. The constable will be down onto ye to-morrow mornin' 'fore 9 o'clock if ye don't, an' there'll be a neighborhood scandal about this bird that'll make the whole race o' Shakewells shake in their graves. Caesar ! for the sake of your proud and honorable aincestors take that bird back, and to morrow take yer gun and go to the woods and git one o' the turkeys uv yer fathers—an' it's a bird that no nigger ought to turn up his nose at, either.'

Here the 'aincestor' sniffed delightedly at something invisible, something in his memory aparently, and then went on :

'It's a bird dat no man owns ; it's de true Vahginiah turkey. 'Tisn't a feathered bird ; 'tisn't a fowl at all. It wears fur and has fifty teeth, a bristly tongue, a long prehensible tail—you see, Caesar, yer aincestor had larnin'—and plantigrade feet, Caesar, it has plantigrade feet.'

'Ugh !' said Caesar, too dazed to utter an intelligible word.

The 'aincestor' continued : 'Its feet has as many toes on each foot as a man and long sharp claws on every toe except its inside one. It uses dat as a thumb. It is a marsupial turkey, Caesar.' Here the ancestor smiled at the towering proportions of his own learning, but presently talked on.

'Alive it has an odor ye can't mistake, an roasted he smells better nor a flower-garden. He's a bird worth givin' thanks over. Now, take dat ole, droopin', white folks' turkey back to his yowner, and go out ter-morrah and git de 'possum, de 'riginal turkey ob old Vahginiah, de turkey of yer fathers'—and lo ! the ancestor vanished.

Perspiring at every pore Caesar Alexander shouldered the turkey and started toward Col. Fairgroye's. Just as he was about to enter the yard, through the break in the fence previously made by himself, he felt another hand laid on his shoulder with considerable emphasis. Fearing that another and still more terrible ancestor was about to have speech with him, he sank to the earth, without daring to look around. Then the hand grabbed him more firmly and gave him a vigorous shake. He looked up appealingly and confronted the constable. With a groan he fainted dead away.

'What ye groanin' and carrying on like an animal fur ?' was the next thing he heard. The question was propounded in his wife's most ungentle voice.

He opened his eyes slowly and in abject fear, and found himself sitting by his own fireside, the children in bed and Mrs. Shakewell standing by him with her hand on his shoulder. He never was so happy in his life. Col. Fairgroye's turkey was safe where it belonged ; he had never stolen it, and he hadn't met any dead and gone ancestor at all, only in dreams. Furthermore, he inwardly resolved that he never would, if ancestors' visits only followed thefts.

The next day when he set off with his gun he told Mrs. Shakewell that he would bring home a 'Vahginiah' turkey. And he did. He held it up with pride and joy on his return, and was rewarded by a smile from that exacting lady.

The 'possum was eaten with gravy and grace, and Mr. Shakewell's standing in the community remained unimpaired. As he bent over his own fragrant thanksgiving board he had more than usual cause for gratitude. 'Vahginiah turkeys was good enough fer my fathers, and good 'nough fer me,' he often says ; but though he sometimes tells of the encounter with his ancestor, he never tells of the cause of that worthy individual's visit to him.

BLACK CHEWING GUM. — Lately there has crept into the Detroit market a substance known as "black chewing gum," made out of tar, which is said by medical men to be extremely harmful and pernicious. It is becoming a great favorite with local gum chewers, but physicians assert its use is productive of sore mouths and innumerable throat diseases. Put up in fancy paper, sold at a penny a block, flavored with some unknown ingredient, and christened with a sweetly-sounding name, as "luti-tuti," for instance, the black chewing gum is forcing its entrance into all grades of Detroit society, and driving its rivals to the wall. But it is nothing but tar—cheap tar at that—mixed with gelatine and flavored with—heaven and the manufacturer only know what.—Free Press.

A SHOWMAN CAUGHT.—A showman was making a great fuss at the front of his exhibition of the wonders he had inside. A man standing in the crowd, with a little boy beside him, cried out : 'I'll bet you a dollar you cannot let me see a lion.' 'Done,' said the showman, eagerly; 'put down your money.' The man placed a dollar in the hand of a bystander, and the showman did the same. 'Now walk this way,' said the showman, 'and I'll soon convince you. There you are,' said he, triumphantly; 'look in the corner at that beautiful Numidian lion.' 'I don't see any,' responded the other. 'What's the matter with you ?' asked the showman. 'I'm blind,' was the grinning reply, and in a few minutes the blind man pocketed the two dollars and went away.

Last Week's Tempest.

Vessels and Men go Down on Lake Michigan.

A STORM THAT HAS DONE VAST DAMAGE EAST AND WEST OF THE MISSISSIPPI, ON LAND AND WATER AND BRINGS WINTER.

The first great gale and snow of the season began in Dakota on Tuesday and swept eastward to the lakes. Seven lives are known to have been lost by wrecks on Lake Michigan and many marine disasters are believed to have occurred. The snow has largely obstructed travel in the Northwest, where the railroads have been blocked by the snow.

Swamped in the Breakers.

SEAMEN DROWNED FROM SINKING VESSELS ON LAKE MICHIGAN.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 17.—While the storm was at its height this morning the barge Dixon, which was one of the tow of the steamer Justice Fields, foundered off Kewannee, on the western side of Lake Michigan, about one hundred miles north of this city. Two seamen were drowned. A few hours later the Emerald, another of the barges in tow of the fields, got into the breakers and quickly swamped. Five of her crew were swept away and lost. Breview, the mate, was saved in an unconscious condition. The gale blew so terrifically that the steamer was unable to save the barges.

During a terrible gale and snowstorm last night the schooner P. S. Marsh, loaded with coal, ran on the beach near Graham's Point, in the Straits of Mackinac, between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron. The captain signaled at ten o'clock this morning that she would soon go to pieces. Help has been sent for, but it will be impossible to do anything to help the vessel to-day on account of the big seas, to which she lays broadside and which are momentarily growing larger. Another schooner is ashore across the point four miles from St. Ignace.

An Early Blizzard.

HEAVY SNOW FROM DAKOTA TO LAKE MICHIGAN—TRAVEL IMPEDED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—No such storm as that of to-day has been known throughout the Northwest so early in the season for many years. In this city a steady rain has been falling since 7 o'clock last night and prevails generally between here and the Mississippi river, west of which there is a heavy snow and howling blizzard, seriously delaying telegraphic communication in all directions. At St. Paul the snow was continuous yesterday, growing heavier after midnight, and this morning the people found the streets so badly blockaded that travel was next to impossible. The blizzard began in Dakota and swept east and south through Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Northern Illinois and Michigan. At Sioux Falls, Dakota, the snow continued for eighteen hours and the temperature fell to zero. On the Illinois Central Railroad, between Fort Dodge and Sioux City, the cuts are filled with snow and snow plows have been sent out to clear the tracks. Trains are impeded on many roads and the blizzard is moving eastward, bringing the snow and falling thermometer with it.

At St. Paul at 9 o'clock to-night the storm had raged forty-eight hours and showed no signs of abatement. Street cars have not been running in either St. Paul or Minneapolis to-day and trains on all railroads are from three to six hours late. While the storm seems to be general throughout the Northwest it is most violent in Southern Dakota. A Sioux Falls special says that more snow has already fallen than during the entire season last winter. The wind is blowing a heavy gale from the north and the snow is drifting very badly. Trains on nearly all the roads are abandoned. The temperature is at zero and falling. There is also strong electrical disturbance. Other points state that the storm is no less severe.

A train with one hundred passengers on board is snowed in eleven miles west of Canton, Dak. The passengers are being fed from a small station near by. The Milwaukee Railway is lined with dead engines in snow drifts.

FOR WHAT SHALL WE BE THANKFUL.

Some Old, Oft Repeated Questions, and Their Unfashionable Answers.

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the sorrowing. 'Grief abideth with us, and in our hearts is the bitterness of cotinnued trouble.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the poor. 'The earth overflows with plenty, but we are destitute. Cold and hunger is our portion, and want is our companion all the days of the year.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the hopeless. 'The days go on, but they bring us no joy. The sun and moon traverse the heavens without warming our chilled hearts or lighting our dark pathway.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the disappointed. 'Wherever we turn, there, waiting to dishearten us, lurks disappointment. When we rise he it is that causes us again to fall.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the tempted, the mistaken, the fallen. 'Our temptations have overcome us ; our mistakes have destroyed us ; our sins have crushed us. For us there is nothing left but wretchedness.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the baffled. 'When we strive we fail ; when we pray no answer comes ; when we hope our hopes are never realized ; when we love our loves are lost to us.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the bereaved. 'Death has robbed us and left us moaning. Our sore hearts cannot take up the cry of rejoicing, for we weep uncomforted.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the sick. 'We suffer and know no ease. We are full of anguish night and day.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the persecuted. 'Our enemies outnumber us ; our burdens are greater than we can bear.'

'For what shall we be thankful ?' say the weary, the wounded, the forsaken, the heavy of heart. 'For us there is no rest, no happiness, no help. Weariness is our portion and burdens our inheritance. We have no cause for rejoicing from the beginning of the year to the end.'

For these, for all these, it is written: 'Rest in the Lord. Oh, rest in the Lord. Wait patiently for Him and He shall give thee thy heart's desire.'

To these, to all these, the promise has been given. To these, the words from a plain old sermon come with power to heal : 'There is heaven to be thankful for. Whatever sorrows bereave us here, whatever fatal mistakes darken our lives, whatever irredeemable losses befall us, we may yet rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him in the little life that remains ; for beyond this world's gain or loss, high in the serene air of heaven, when existence ceases to be a lesson and becomes vivid life, there and only there shall He give us our heart's desire in its immortal fullness. Here knowledge is defiled, love is imperfect, purity the result of fiery trial, wealth rusted into covetousness ; but in heaven is the very native country of pure knowledge, perfect love, utter sinlessness, and riches that neither mot nor rust corrupt, that bless and curse not.'

Another Storm Predicted.

It seems that another storm period will occur next month, if Professor Foster knows anything about such things. He publishes his prediction of a great storm period, extending from December 4th to 17th, during which will occur some of the most destructive winter storms of recent years. Heavy snow and high winds will greatly impede railroad travel and he advises the railways to prepare for blockades that will occur in the western states about December 5th and reach the eastern states December 9th. He suggests that many lives and much property can be saved from loss by making preparations for the severe weather of this storm period.

NO CHANGE NECESSARY.

There is a millionaire in town who has a great reputation of meanness. Most millionaires have that reputation, but most of them are mean to their friends and relatives and others. This man is mean to himself as well. This millionaire was interested in some of the recent failures, and made some sweeping losses.

'Oh, it's awful ! awful ! I'm ruined, quite ruined !' he said to a fellow sufferer.

'I am sorry, but, after all, there's one great thing in your favor.'

'What is that ; I can't see it.'

'You won't need to change your mode of life at all.'

The excessive smoking of tobacco, it is again claimed, causes loss of eyesight. Are men's eyes poorer than women's ?

KIDNAPPED.

There was nothing new in the plot of the desperate villains who sought to extort money from Mr. Ross by stealing his son Charley. The kidnapping of children for the sake of gain or revenge has been practiced for hundreds of years. There are doubtless to-day in this country a score or more of Charley Ross cases, but as the parents are not rich and prominent, and the search not aided by legislative action and the united press, they are seldom heard of by the great public.

The case of Willie Albright, an English lad, was full of strange adventures. He lived at Sheffield with his parents until five years of age. His father was employed in a great factory there and his mother was a dressmaker for the neighborhood. They lived in a cottage in the suburbs of the town, and at the age of four the boy was permitted to run about the neighborhood a good deal. At five, when he was kidnapped, he was sent to the stores to make purchases, and knew all the streets clear to the factory in which his father worked. One day in 1861, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, he was sent to a store three blocks away after some buttons. Before he reached it a strange man accosted him and asked his name. He then gave Willie some sweetmeats and asked him to go and look at a Punch and Judy show in the town, promising to return with him in a half hour. The boy eagerly set off with him, and was taken to the railroad depot and placed on a train in charge of a middle-aged woman, who gave him some more sweet meats and was very kindly spoken. She said the show had moved away and they were going after it, and the novelty of the child's position prevented him feeling any anxiety. When the detectives came to take the case up, as they did two days after the boy disappeared, they got no clue whatever. Although he had walked a mile or two hand in hand with the abductor along crowded streets, nobody remembered seeing the pair. They had gone openly to the railroad station, but no one there had noticed them. The guard on the train dimly remembered a woman and a child in a compartment, but could give no discription. As the Albrights were poor and lowly, no great stir was created, and no great effort was made by the detectives to restore the boy to his parents.

The boy was taken from Sheffield to Liverpool, being so well treated on the way that he had no thought of his home. At Liverpool he was told that his name was John Manton, and that the woman was his mother. When he disputed the point he was soundly whipped. His hair were cut close, his dress entirely changed, and a liquid was rubbed on his skin which turned it dark. Except when he asked to go home, or denied that his name was John Manton, he was kindly treated, and after he had been beaten seven or eight times he accepted the new name, and ceased to refer to his parents. Young as he was this was a stroke of policy on his part. He realized that he had been stolen from home, and he kept repeating to himself that his true name was Willie Albright, and that he lived at Sheffield.

After a couple of weeks lessons in tumbling and tight-rope walking were given to the boy. He was never permitted to go out alone or to converse with strangers, and it soon came natural for him to call the woman mother. In the course of a couple of months the past seemed a dream to him, and he would have forgotten all about it had he not kept repeating to himself : "I am not Johnny Manton, but Willie Albright, and they stole me away from Sheffield." He was in Liverpool six weeks before he knew the name of the city. When he had been taught how to dance, sing, tumble, and walk a tight rope—a matter of three months' time—he was taken around the country with a small show, which the woman owned in part. The novelty of travel was so agreeable that he almost forgot his situation, and was for two or three years quite content. There was no one to teach him how to read or write, but he was quick-witted, and could reason beyond his years. He had hopes that the show would some day reach Sheffield, and he would slip out and run home, but the people of course carefully avoided the place. Once, when they were showing at Doncaster, a few miles away, Willie observed a man whose face had a familiar look, gazing at him in an honest manner, and presently heard him say to a friend :

"The laddie keeps me thinking of the child who was stolen away from neighbor Albright; but of course it can't be the one."

The boy was about to call out that his name was Willie Albright, when the woman, who always kept an eagle eye on him, came closer, and intimidated him. The show then hurridly packed up and left the place. The boy now realized more fully than ever that his right name was Albright, and that he had been stolen from home, but he also realized his hopelessness. He had been told that if he ever tried to run away, wild animals would pursue and devour him, and he was in mortal terror of a bulldog which followed the show. He therefore humbly obeyed all orders, and made no move to run away. He was about eight years old when he changed masters, being sold for a good round price to a man who called himself Prof. Williams. This man was a ventriloquist and juggler, and he took the boy to Australia with him, and gave hall performances for a year or so. They then returned, and made the tour of Scotland and Ireland, and sailed for America. Albright was about eleven years old when he landed in New York. The Professor then took the name of La Pierre, though he was no Frenchman in look or speech, and traveled for a year. One day as they were filling a date at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the boy was sent to the postoffice with letters, and a curious thing happened. One of the four boys who had witnessed the performance the night previous made up to him in a friendly way, and asked his name.

"Johnny Manton," was the reply.

"Yes, but that is your stage name. What is the other ?"

"Willie Albright."

"That's funny. A family named Albright live next door to us. They lived in England."

"So did I."

"Maybe you are related. I'm going to tell 'em about you."

Two hours later a man and his wife called at the hotel and asked for the boy, and the mother had no sooner set eyes on him than she hugged him to her heart. The father was longer making up his mind, but he soon came to feel certain that John Manton was Willie Albright and the boy who had been stolen from him seven or eight years before. The parents had been in America three years, and had long before given up all hopes of ever hearing from the child. The professor made a great kick, as his bread and butter were at stake, but when he found the people determined to have justice done he slipped away in the night and was heard of no more.—*N. Y. SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

The Limited Express Struck By Rolling Rocks.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 18.—The heavy rains of last night caused a most disastrous landslide from Mt. Washington, on the south side of the Monongahela river, the sides of which are almost perpendicular, and along the base of which the Pan-Handle Railroad is constructed. The Limited Express on the Pan-Handle Road, due in the city at 9.40, had reached a place just beyond the Point Bridge, one mile from Union Station, when a mass of rock came crashing down the hillside. The train consisted of three Pullman cars, in addition to several mail cars. The first sleeper was the Cincinnati, and the second and third from Indianapolis. The first mass struck the Cincinnati sleeper, crushing through the roof near the centre. This car had very few passengers in, and nearly all of them were up and in the lavatories. D. Arnheim, of this city, was standing in the isle and was crushed beneath a huge rock. Mr. A. S. Bennet, of New York, was still in his berth and a mass crushed through the upper berth, carried it down upon him, and pinned him beneath it. The second car was struck in the centre, one huge rock going through from one side to the other, and tearing out nearly the entire side of the car. The other car was also badly crushed. Nearly the entire mass remained on the cars, and as the track was but very little obstructed the conductor ordered the engineer to pull out for the Union station as rapidly as possible. A telephone message had been sent giving information of the accident. By the time the train pulled into the station the entire force of employes was ready to assist in removing the injured from the cars, stretchers and all other requirements as well as a force of physicians, being on hand. The cars were in such a condition that they could be brought in, but the presence of mind of the conductor was most commendable. The injured were removed as rapidly as possible and conveyed to hotels near at hand and made as comfortable as possible. The accident caused great excitement. When the news was first announced the most exaggerated reports gained currency. The passengers gave some most graphic descriptions of the scenes in the different sleepers at the time of the accident, and the only wonder is that every one aboard was not killed or injured. The casualties thus far number eight, two of whom, D. Arnheim, of Allegheny, and A. S. Bennet, of New York, are likely to die. The scene where the accident occurred is one of the most dangerous along the line of the road, but it is so carefully watched, especially after heavy rainfalls, that no accidents to trains have occurred at that point for a number of years.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

SECRETARY Manning's health is reported splendid and he is hard at work on his annual report. The idea of retiring from the Cabinet does not enter his mind.

REPORTS are current that Lieut. Gov. C. F. Black will be the successor of Sunset Cox as minister to Turkey. Gov. Black will not fail to fill the bill and gain the esteem of foreign courts.

EX-PRESIDENT Arthur's death which occurred last Thursday, Nov. 18th, takes away another of Americn's illustrious sons and a man who administered the office of the highest executive in the land to the credit of himself and his countrymen.

ECONOMY and simplicity characterized Gov. Pattison's inauguration. Not so with the coming inauguration of Gen. Beaver. By all appearances the usual pomp and show will accompany that occasion and the coffers of the state will have to stand it. Tra la!

A cyclone struck Girard, Kansas, on Monday morning, Nov. 22nd, passing through the residence portion of the town and demolishing all the lighter buildings in its path which was only about 75 feet wide. The more substantial buildings stood the shock without much damage. A number of persons were injured, some of them seriously.

PENNSYLVANIA suffers an important loss by the recent decision of the Supreme Court, exempting the corporations from the so-called "three mill tax." In consequence of this dicision the state will lose in Allegheny county alone, including Pittsburg and Allegheny City, $225,000 in taxes annually.

THE political complexion of the fiftieth Congress is still strong democratic. The Democrats will have 175 members, the Republicans 150, a majority of 25, or after deducting the three labor representatives elected by the Democrats, a certain majority of 19. It is the first time in forty years that a democratic administration has a majority in their second congress, and we can't complain.

THE republican legislature of Pennsylvania will convene on the first Monday in January and will attend to the following two important matters first, namely the election of Quay, the head boss of the Cameron Clique, to the U. S. Senate, vice Mitchell, whose term expires March 4th. And next the passage of the prohibition amendment to the constitution. The latter action was made a condition by those prohibitionists who refused to follow Wolf, but stuck to the Republican ticket. After the amendment has passed, it will rest until 1888, when it will have to be passed by another legislature. And then the question will go before the people in the following year.

A SPECIAL DISPATCH in Tuesday's Harrisburg Patriot says that the general opinion is that three of the principal places in Beaver's Cabinet have been settled and that it looks from all that can be learned from political sources that may be considered reliable that General Beaver will have his mind made up as to the composition of his Cabinet long before the day of his inauguration as Governor. The talk is that Senator Cooper will be Secretary of the Commonwealth; J. Hay Brown, of Lancaster, Attorney-General; and Col. D. H. Hastings, of Bellefonte, Adjutant-General. The latter's appointment is accepted by all the politicians as a foregone conclusion and it is generally believed that Chairman Cooper will surely succeed W. S. Stenger, provided that the provisions of the Constitution do not prevent. It is held by many that Cooper will be eligible for the office by resigning his seat in the Senate. As to J. Hay Brown, the statement was made to-day that unless something should occur the gentleman will be given the position of Attorney-General. Mr. Brown's friends declare he is an able attorney and that he would be acceptable to all the Republicans of Lancaster county. Upon the resignation of Colonel Quay from the office of State Treasurer it is believed that Chris Magee's friend McDevitt will be given the place. McDevitt was Quay's principal opponent for the nomination last year.

Almost Killed for a Dime.

Lively Experience of a Toledo Man Who Fell into a Hot Air Pipe.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 19.—A singular accident occurred at the drug store of I. N. Reed last evening. A gentleman called there to get some medicine, in paying for which he dropped a dime and it rolled upon the register and into the hot air pipe. He said he could see the coin and thought he could reach it. The register was raised and the stranger undertook to reach the dime. In some manner he lost his hold and went head first down into the hot air pipe. Mr. Reed ran into the cellar to assist the man in getting out, but he had fallen against the furnace pipe door and wrenched it off, which let him into the cellar. Fortunately, there was but little fire in the furnace. The young man as soon as he could recover from the shock, remarked that he was a tinner and would fix the door to the furnace pipe. He went to work at it, without even removing his overcoat, and soon had it all right. Aside from being pretty well besmeared with ashes and dirt, he escaped unharmed.

A Life Spent in Literary Work Ends in Peaceful Sleep After Five Years With a Disease of the Brain.

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Charles Francis Adams died at 8.30 a. m. to-day. He had suffered for some five years from brain trouble arising from overtaxing his brain in literary work upon which he was engaged. He was the third son of John Quincy Adams, and was born in Boston, August 19, 1807. He served three years in the Massachusetts legislature and two years in the senate. In 1858 he was elected to Congress, where he served until 1861, when he was appointed Minister to England. He returned from that country in 1868. In the many discussions he had with the British Ministry he showed a complete knowledge of international law and of American history as well as discretion and tact while his influence was greatly increased by his social qualities, his agreeable conversation and his familiarity with the whole range of English literature. When in 1868 he returned after a residence of seven years abroad, Mr. Adams left England with the universal respect of those with whom he had official relations.

Mr Adams has been a contributor to the North American Review and the Christian Examiner and between 1845 and 1848 was the editor of a political daily paper in Boston. His principal literary effort, however, was the editing of the collected writings of his grandfather, John Adams, the second President of the United States. They were published in ten volumes, the first of which contained the life of John Adams, written by him. The latter years of his life were devoted to the editing of a similar work relating to his father, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President.

THE U. S. Dispensatory and the Science of Chemistry justify the assertion that for tonic, diaphoretic and expectorant properties, no combination of remedies can be devised to equal in power and efficacy Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine. It is a safe and reliable standby in case of croup and whooping-cough. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

Run Down by Detectives.

Six of the Notorious Gang of Buzzard Outlaws Arrested and Jailed.

READING, Pa., Nov. 21.—County detective Kershner, constable Brobst and a number of other officers made a raid in the hills beyond Reading and brought, handcuffed, to the jail six prisoners accused of robbery, burglary, horse stealing, threatening to burn barns, and other crimes. The prisoners are rough looking men, hailing from different sections of the county, and all giving fictitious names. Country stores, post-offices and railroad stations are robbed nightly. These prisoners are believed to be members of a regular organized gang who have terrorized northern Berks and southern Schuylkill counties. Augustus Kosser, a stalwart German in a red shirt, is charged with horse stealing. His pals will be first tried for burglary. John Howard, a one-eyed and one-armed man, was detected in firing a barn. Farmers report their barns broken into every night and occupied as sleeping places, regardless of orners to remain off their premises. The thieves have horses and wagons, and sometimes the entire stocks of stores are loaded up and carried off during the night.

A KNIFE CUT OUT OF HIM.

Remarkable Re oval From the Stomach of a Fool-Hardy Man Out West.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 19.—One of the most remarkable surgical operations ever attempted in the United States was performed at 1209 South Broadway, the home of a tailor named Joseph Hoffman. The latter has always had a penchant for swallowing solids without the process of mastication. One year ago he attempted to show his family how swords could be swallowed, and using the poker for illustration. It got fast in his cesophagus and he had a narrow escape from death. Wednesday night he picked up a silver-plated table knife, 10 inches long, and calling upon his children to watch him, he introduced the handle into his mouth and passed it down until only two inches of the blade protruded. At that moment he attempted to look around to see the effect on the spectators, and in doing so the knife slipped down the gullet. He screamed with agony, and a neighbor rushed in and attempted to pull the knife out. He felt the top of the blade but it eluded his grasp and dropped down into the stomach. Dr. A. C. Bernays, the surgeon, was summoned, and decided that the knife would have to be taken from the stomach through an abdominal incision. Hoffman was chloroformed, and an incision five inches long was made in the abdomen. When the stomach was reached the knife was found lying horizontally. An incision about an inch long was made in the stomach, and the knife was seized by the handle and withdrawn. Then came the delicate part of the operation. The mucous membrane was first stitched, then the muscular, and last the peritoneum. The work was done quickly, and there was scarcely any internal hemorrhage. About 20 stitches were then made in the abdominal incision, and the patient was put to bed. Last night he was doing well, and is taking some milk and beef tea. The only danger is from inflammation or blood poisoning. Hoffman is 45 years of age.

PHYSICIANS
Say about it in Rheumatism.
MALARIA. DYSPEPSIA,
NERVOUS DEBILITY,
LIVER, LUNG AND KIDNEY DISEASE.

The eminent and celebrated Dr. Glessner writes: The Kaskine Co.—DEAR SIRS—"The first greatest successes I had with Kaskine were in chills and fever, malaria, nervous debility, rheumatism, dyspepsia, and liver diseases, and I considered at that time it was undoubtedly the best medicine ever discovered, but I was even then unfamiliar with its really wonderful powers in curing all the other germ diseases and disorders, particularly where the blood had become diseased or impoverished and digestion impaired. Strictly speaking, Kaskine is the only blood purifier we have. I use it also very largely with unfailing success in all diseases peculiar to women and children. In over three hundred cases I have cured there has never been the slightest bad effect following its use, and it is far superior to any tonic or nerve medicine ever known to the medical profession." Very truly yours,
L. M. GLESSNER, M.D., 360 East 12IstSt., New York.

Prof. W. F. Holcombe, M. D., 54 East 25th St., N. Y. (late Prof. in N. Y. Med. College) writes: "Kaskine is superior to quinine in its specific power, and never produces the slightest injury to the hearing or constitution."

The U. S. Examining Surgeon, Dr. L. R. White, writes: "Kaskine is the best medicine made."

St. Francis Hospital, N.Y. { "Every patient treated with Kaskine has been discharged cur'd."

—Why not provide for more street lamps in this town ? While the central part of Main street is illuminated in the best style, other parts of town are entirely neglected and present a dreary and uncomfortable look on dark nights. A HEAVY PAIR.—Two porkers were killed yesterday morning by merchant Stoyer, the combined weight of which was 885 pounds. —John F. Breon, of Spring Mills, and Jacob Snavely, of Penns Creek, were welcome callers at the Journal office on Monday. ISAAC HECKMAN, Pastor.

IN THE SILENT HALLS OF DEATH.—It is with feelings of awe and regret that we write up the numerous deaths which occurred in town and around us since our last issue. One after another the neighbors and acquaintances whom we were accustomed to meet in our daily walk pass away and leave us wondering who will be next and when our time will come.

On Saturday, about noon, Samuel Weiser, Sr., suddenly died at his residence on Main street. The old gentleman had been ailing more or less for the last few years, but several weeks before his death felt exceptio nally well. On the day of his death he carried an armful of wood to his room, which seemed to exhaust him very much and he set down in a chair to rest, when death overtook him then and there. His oldest daughter, Mrs. Rearick, who was in the next room, alarmed by his quick and heavy breathing ran to his side. She was just in time to catch her dying father in her arms and see him breathe his last. It is thought to have been a case of heart disease. Mr. Weiser was born June 2nd 1808 and had reached the ripe age of 78 years, 5 months and 18 days. He was one of the oldest and best know citizens of Millheim and raised a family of five sons and two daughters, all alive and married. His funeral took place on Tuesday forenoon when Rev. Swengle held the services in the Evangelical church, of which deceased was a member.

On the same day news reached this town that J. A. Motz, of Charlotte, N. C had died suddenly on Thursday, Nov. 18th. Deceased was a brother to Em'l. Motz, in whose mines he was employed for the last eight years and who brought his body to Woodward, his native place, on Monday morning for burial. His age was 58 years, 8 months and 13 days. He was the father of Miss Mary Motz, deceased, who formerly resided in this place. The particulars of his unexpected death are as follows: He and several miners were working in the mines and were engaged in blasting. They had charged a large rock and when the charge exploded the heavy mass of stone fell on Mr. Motz's head, which was crushed to almost a jelly and he was instantly killed. Physicians who were called on the ground at once prepared the body of the unfortunate victim for its homeward journey.

Mrs. Polly Heckman, of Nittany Valley, is another victim of the merciless reaper Death. This aged and much esteemed lady died at her residence on Thursday morning of a complication of ailments incident to old age. Deceased was 75 years old and was the mother of Adam Heckman, a son-in-law of our townsman Jacob Sankey. She was a consistent member of the Lutheran church for 52 years and was well and favorably known for her christian fortitude and friendly disposition. Her funeral took place on Monday forenoon when her remains were laid to rest in St. Paul's cemetery, Nittany Valley.

Our town people were just on their way to attend the funeral of Samuel Weiser, Sr., dec'd, when the tolling of the Evangelical church bell announced the death of Samuel Sankey, of San Francisco, Cal., which occured at Mifflinburg, where he was on a visit to his brother, John Sankey. A few weeks ago he arrived in that place, and soon took sick with yellow jaundice and other diseases which resulted in his death on Tuesday morning. He was a native of this place, having been born in the old Sankey homestead on Penn street July 26th, 1829. He was married to a daughter of Geo. Dreisbach, dec'd, late of Mifflinburg and his wife preceded him to the grave last July. He was one of the "49ers" who first went to California from this section. His death was easy and peaceful. His body was conveyed to Aaronsburg yesterday, where by his own request he will be buried beside his parents, to-day (Thurday) at 2 p. m.

Our Rebersburg correspondent informs our readers of the death of David Wolf, of Wolf's store, a prominent citizen of Miles township.

—The Lutheran Sunday School of this place concluded last Sunday to hold a Christmas celebration on Christmas evening, Saturday, December 25th. The evening will be spent in prayer, praising, and other suitable exercises to be followed by the distribution of gifts to the school. A committee of arrangements, consisting of seven members of the school, was appointed, who will use their best endeavors to make the affair as pleasant and attractive as possible.

DECEMBER 7TH AND 8TH, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.—To the Public :—Dr. Clemens, graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and of twenty-five years' experience, whose principal office is at Allentown, Pa., specialist in all chronic affections, and who treats principally by inhalations, will visit Williamsport once a month for the purpose of examining patients for all chronic affections, and who are difficult to treat in any other way. After the examinations, all remedies, including inhalations, will be sent to the patients from his regular office. Will be in Bellefonte on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 7th and 8th, 1886, with office at the Brockerhoff House and will attend patients from Tuesday evening to Wednesday evening, Dec. 7th and 8th. Do not forget the dates. H. S. CLEMENS, M. D.

N. B.—Send for testimonials.

—John C. Morris, of Wolf's store, called on us on Saturday last. Mr. Morris is one of the most successful tree agents that ever canvassed this neighborhood. His stock of trees which he lately delivered to his many customers gave entire satisfaction, being superior to any brought here before and he has consequently very little trouble in collecting his bills.

—A copy of the first number of Musical Tidings, published in Williamsport by W. A. Brown, formerly of Spring Mills, is on our table. It is neat in get up and its contents are of much interest to musicians. It is an eight-page paper, three columns to the page and the publisher already finds it necessary to enlarge the sheet, in order to meet demands.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.—W. G. Rook, the proprietor of the National Hotel at this place, extends a cordial invitation to all to enjoy a fine Thanksgiving feast at his house to-day. His charges will be very moderate. The following is the elegant bill of fare prepared for this occasion :

SOUP: Chicken Broth, Bullion.

HANDSOME CHURCH EDIFICE.—The M. E. church on Main street, which will be reopened on the 11th of next month and which has been remodeled and renovated throughout will be as pleasant a place for public worship as any in town. A new spire built in a modern style and of considerable height towers heavenward and the new bell which will be placed in the belfry this week will shortly send forth peals of sweet and solemn sounds, calling the church people to their worship. The interior of the church presents a very neat appearance. The old cumbersome stairway has been changed to an open and easy entrance, while the gallery in the rear of the audience chamber has been removed and the seats in that part of the room arranged in rows one above the other. The frescoed ceilings and walls look tasty and pleasing to the eye and after the seats are newly painted and the colored glass windows have been put in their places, the general effect will be very favorable. The church is being heated by two large furnaces. The basement rooms have also undergone important changes and will now make splendid Sunday school rooms. We hope the Christian people of this place and vicinity will turn out strong on the day of the rededication and assist in wiping out the church debt of our Methodist fsiends by liberal subscriptions. COBURN.

We are having a full share of rain.

The butchering season has opened and the winter's supply of meat and sausage is being laid by. Joe Kleckner slaughtered two fine hogs on Monday and on Tuesday W. H. Kreamer killed two porkers, one of which was a 400 pounder. This is a happy season for Frank Jordan as he is always on hand for a good dinner.

The force of trackmen on our railroad has been reduced to three, throwing three men out of employment.

The body of J. A. Motz, who was killed by an accident in a gold mine in North Carolina was brought here by express on Monday and taken to Woodward for burial.

The sawmill of Wm & Henry Whitmer at the caye near Rising Springs was destroyed by fire this (Tuesday) morning. The fire is supposed to have originated by sparks falling in the sawdust and smoldering there until about 3 o'clock in the morning, when the fire broke out.

A number of our citizens have received invitations to attend a Thanksgiving dinner to be given by the genial landlord of the National Hotel in Millheim. The invitations are neat and the bill of fare is complete and done up in No. 1. style. We hope there will be a good turnout to show that his efforts to please are appreciated.

G. S. Meyer & Son is the name of the new firm who have started up in the room lately vacated by F. P. Barker. They intend putting in a full line of groceries.

The still house has started up but I am unable to say what they have been doing so far.

A great amount of poultry has been shipped from our station to the New York market the last few weeks.

Passenger travel has been picking up since the trains are run through on passenger train time. 35 tickets were sold from this station to Bellefonte on Monday last. VALE.

GREEN BRIAR.

Our sportsmen are out hunting almost daily, but so far we failed to notice any antlers at their houses.

The new bridge at this place is a fine structure and does credit to the manufacturers, the Columbia Bridge Company.

Mr. David Ertel, an old resident of near this place, and who had been an invalid for over five years is still very poorly.

Danl. Geary had his house repainted and now has one of the neatest looking houses along the road. He also purchased a fine horse from Rev. M. I. Jamison and in our opinion Daniel is fixed first-class now.

John Hesh, our wide-awake miller, is doing a brisk business in his mill. John is the right man in the right place and deserves good patronage.

One day last week, while Mr. John Long, of near Farmers' Mills, was passing Mr. Stover's house, his horse accidentally slipped and fell, throwing its rider to the ground. The horse sprang up, but Mr. Long's foot was still in the stirrup and but for the timely assistance of Calvin Stover it might have cost Mr. Long's life.

AARONSBURG.

John Beaver of North 2nd street has his new house up and ready for the roof.

The Aaronsburg singing class will meet again next Saturday evening by order of the musical director, Prof. Al. Stover.

Ed. Kister, of Boneville, is minus his digging iron. It was taken from his brother George Kister's new ground, north of town. He will allow the parties who took it a reasonable time to return it. Remember he knows who took it. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Mrs. L. E. Stover was to Shamokin to visit her brother, Prof. W. T. Meyer. She returned yesterday, Wednesday, well pleased with her visit.

Rumor says that Thos. G. W. Edmunds will occupy the Penn House in this place sometime after Jan. 1st, 1887. Judging by Mrs. Edmunds' present way of housekeeping we are safe to say the traveling public will, after next spring, find the Aaronsburg Hotel a first-class stopping place.

The entertainment given by the Reformed Mite Society last Saturday evening was a rich treat to all present. The house was crowded to overflowing.

Rolland Wyle, son of Jacob Wyle of this place, who went to Illinois last spring, started for home about two weeks ago. While on his way he took sick in Ohio, and is at present in the hands of strangers, not able to continue his journey homeward. From the latest news received by the parents the boy's recovery and his return home are daily expected.

Post Master Thos. Yearick and wife returned from Philadelphia last week, very much pleased with their visit among their relatives and friends.

There will be two holiday entertainments as reported up to this time in our town. One by the Lutheran S. S. and one by the Reformed S. S. As to when and where held will be stated later. ANOTHER.

REBERSBURG.

Perry Condo the other day lost a valuable horse of colic. This is quite a loss for Perry.

Mrs. Harry Deighler, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Cook Condo, of Lock Haven, are at present here visiting their many friends.

John Moyer was obliged to get himself another house-keeper, his daughter Sarah, who performed that function since her mother's death, having married and gone to Union county, her husband's place of residence.

David Meyer, the Centre Hall landlord, spent last Sunday is our town.

The sawmill of Guistwite Co., after a week's standstill, during which time it underwent general repairs, is again in operation.

There are two young men in this town who must have an awful craving for chickens, pies, &c. They set out the other evening, for the purpose of stealing a lot of these provisions. At the first coop they visited they were confronted by the lady of the house, who claimed that she had a better right to her chickens than the thieves, and, of course, the boys left post haste. Charley in the hurry lost his gum shoe. It stuck fast in the mud and thus gave him away. By offering a few lame excuses he got the shoe back. Afterwards they entered the cellar of a poor widow and with an unquenchable appetite devoured all her pies. Now boys, take a warning ! Hereafter take care that you do not visit other people's coops and cellars, or you may sooner or later receive a load of shot.

A party of hunters from this vicinity are making preparations to take a general bearhunt in the mountains south from here, where, it is said, Bruin has his headquarters.

Hog cholera is still raging in the east end of this valley. Reuben Stover lost nearly all his porkers.

On Monday, the 22nd inst., Miles township lost one of its aged and most respected citizens by death. David Wolf, the subject of this item, was liked by all who knew him. He was a faithful member of the Reformed church and his remains will be brought to this place to-morrow (Wednesday) for burial. SQUIBOB.

MADISONBURG.

Mr. Steats, of Jacksonville, while working for Mr. Zeigler on a lumber job in Little Sugar Valley, had the misfortune to be caught by a falling tree and had his hip dislocated.

J. J. Ocker traded his little pony off to a Mr. Fox, of Lock Haven.

There are only about 17 persons attending court this week from this town and immediate surrounding.

Jacob Frank is having quite a serious time with his sore foot. A pair of new boots which rubbed his foot caused the trouble.

Adam Shafer had the misfortune to lose his fattening hogs a few days before he intended butchering them. They had that much dreaded disease—hog cholera.

Thomas Wolf was seen going up town quite late on Saturday evening. We suppose he had a LONG reason for it.

STILL ANOTHER.

SMITH TOWN.

Rev. Deitzler and family were in our midst on Sunday.

Geo. Brian, one of our young men, left for Brushvalley to attend school there.

J. B. Smith is building an addition to his barn.

Last week while Alfred Stover was hauling corn fodder his horses became frightened and ran off with the load. No more damage than a smashed wheel.

Some young—or perhaps old—scamps still steal chickens from the neighbors around here and take their "boodle" at night to the Pike School house, where by all appearances they have a regular picnic.

The water company cleaned their water channel and laid some new pipes.

JUMBO.

SPRING MILLS.

There was a grand birthday party at the residence of Mrs. Sarah Zeigler, on Thursday of last week. It being Mrs. Zeigler's birthday her children concluded to celebrate their mother's birthday and therefore invited the neighbors and friends to participate in the festivities of the occasion. Mrs. Zeigler who had been absent a few days before was not aware that there would be a birthday party and was much surprised to have so many visitors call in one day. She was however more surprised when she discovered what grand provisions had been made in her kitchen for the preperation of a sumptuous dinner for all the invited guests. Mrs. Zeigler was as happy and as full of merry making as though she was at least ten years younger. May she live to celebrate many such birthdays.

On last Sunday while Samuel Harter and family were at church some one entered his house and helped himself to a new pair of boots and some clothing belonging to his son. The suspicion rests on some tramps that were seen in that locality. Hope the guilty parties may be apprehended and made to suffer the penalty of the law for their depredations.

Prof. D. M. Wolf has been on the sick list for the last week.

Geo. A. Runk who has been off to Nevada on business since last Spring is expected home this week.

P. O. Stover. Esq., of Stephenson county, Ill., spent a few days in this place visiting his many friends here. Mr. Stover has been elected county Superintendent of Stephenson county, Ill., and expects to enter upon his duties in a few weeks. He was formerly a Centre Co. boy and we are indeed glad that he has been so successful in his western home. *

Chester A. Arthur Dead.

A Year of Suffering Exhausts the System, and the Ex-President Succumbs to the Inevitable, Expiring Unexpectedly.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Ex-President Chester A. Arthur died at 5 o'clock this morning at his residence, No. 123 Lexington avenue. He had been ailing for some time from a complication of diseases, principally kidney affection. He had spent the summer at a watering place and it was supposed that this had strengthened somewhat his enfeebled constitution. His death was unexpected, it not being supposed outside of his house that he was in any immediate danger. As soon as the news of his death was announced many flags were placed at half-mast on public and private buildings. A stroke of cerebral apoplexy, sudden, but not wholly unexpected by his physicians, terminated Mr. Arthur's life. The stroke came in his sleep during Tuesday night and he did not rally thereafter. For hours before the end came he was unconscious to his surroundings. His son and daughter, his sister, his former law partner, Sherman W. Kneyals, and his closest friend, Surrogate Rollins were at his bedside. The funeral will take place on Saturday at 9 a. m., from the Church of Heavenly Rest, on Fifth Avenue. The Rev. Dr. Parker Morgan will officiate. Mr. Arthur was not a member of any church, but his wife formerly attended that church. The remains will be interred in Albany Rural Cemetery in the family plot.

James C. Reed, Private Secretary to late ex-President Arthur, received all the callers at the house of the Arthur's, 123 Lexington Avenue, to-day. The family of the dead ex-President, consisting of his son, Chester A. Arthur, Jr., his daughter, Ellen H. Arthur and his sisters, Mrs. McElroy and Mrs. Caw, denying themselves to all callers. They remain in an apartment on the second floor of the house and here they receive dispatches conveying expressions of sympathy from relatives and near friends, but none are given to the public.

The News at Washington.

Expressions of Regret and Sympathy—President Cleveland's Condolence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The news of ex-President Arthur's death spread rapidly and was received with expression of regret by every one. President Cleveland received a telegram about 9 o'clock from Mr. Arthur's private secretary announcing the death. The President was very much shocked and at once sent the following telegram of sympathy to Mrs. McElroy, the ex-President's sister:

"Accept my heartfelt sympathy in your heartfelt grief and the expression of my sorrow for the death of one who was my kind and considerate friend. The people of the country will sincerely mourn the loss of a citizen who served them well in their highest trust and won their affection by an exhibition of the best traits of true American character."

All the members of the Cabinet upon hearing the news proceeded to the White House to confer with the President as to the proper course to pursue. It was agreed to issue an executive order announcing the death of the ex-President, and directing the government buildings to be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that business be suspended on the day of the funeral.

The President and several members of the cabinet will leave here Friday night for New York to attend the funeral of ex-President Arthur.

Senators Thurman, Edmunds, Logan, Allison, Butler, Cameron, Voorhees, Miller, Vest, Gorman, Hawley and Jones, will attend the funeral on behalf of the Senate.
